

Case Management

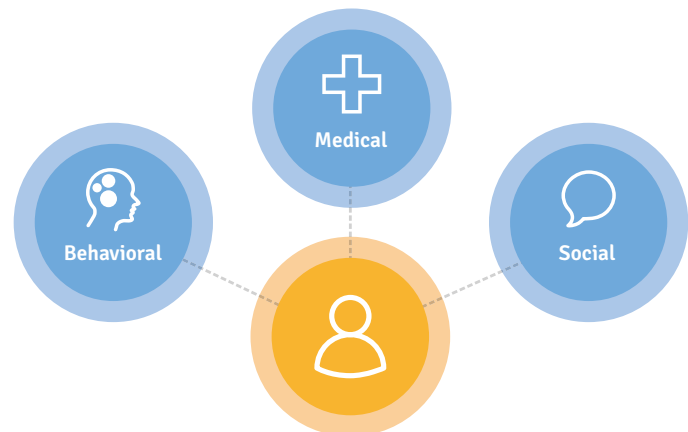

An Integrated Approach to Medical and Behavioral Health Case Management

Whether your members are experiencing a medical crisis, living with multiple chronic conditions, facing a serious mental illness, or a combination of these, our URAC- and NCQA-accredited medical and behavioral health case management services will help them attain healthier lives while your plan controls costs.

Integrate

Our integrated approach takes into account the physical, behavioral and social issues that may complicate a serious condition or health crisis and further escalate costs. With our proprietary therapeutic intervention model, Dynamic Somato-Social Theory®, we address and manage not only the present diagnoses, but also the overall well-being of the member. With this understanding, we advocate for members to help overcome barriers while ensuring appropriate care is delivered.

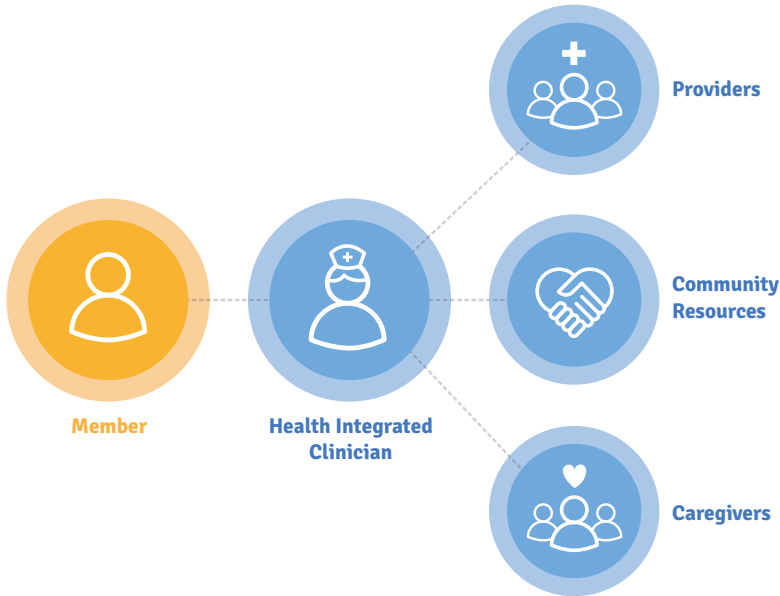

An integrated approach addresses the overall well-being of the member.

Coordinate

Our licensed and highly skilled nurses and behavioral health clinicians are committed to assisting members facing or risking a health crisis. They work closely with the member and all constituents in the member's health care ecosystem – providers, caregivers, community and plan resources – to ensure the member's care is coordinated, appropriate and cost-effective.

A high level of coordination across a member's health care ecosystem assures quality and cost-effectiveness.

Manage

A health crisis or behavioral health condition can lead to frequent emergency room visits, lengthy inpatient stays, readmissions and redundant services, all of which lead to higher costs. Our integrated and well-coordinated solution avoids this by supporting best practice care while managing utilization. This increases your members' quality of life and reduces the demand on your resources – both of which drive savings.
